The University of Georgia College of Education recognized several outstanding faculty members and an Honors student during its annual Spring Celebration on Monday, April 28 at the Georgia Center for Continuing Education.

Aderhold Distinguished Professor

Ronald Cervero, professor and department head of lifelong education, administration, and policy, received the college's highest honor when he was named the Aderhold Distinguished Professor for exemplary contributions in teaching, research, and service.

Cervero was inducted into the International Adult and Continuing Education Hall of Fame in 2003 and honored with the Leadership Award from the Association for Continuing Higher Education in 2005. Two of his books, Effective Continuing Education for Professionals and Planning Responsibly for Adult Education: A Guide to Negotiation Power and Interests, are primary resources in adult education.

The Aderhold Distinguished Professor holds the title for one academic year and receives $4,000 in discretionary funds for one year, a one-time cash award, or a combination of the two. Only professors with five years or more on the UGA faculty are eligible.
