

*Be a part of Red Clay Writing Project,
a group of outstanding educators devoted to inquiry,
social justice, and the power of teachers.*

The Red Clay Writing Project
Summer Institute
Informational Meeting
Saturday, January 24, 2009
10-noon
114 Aderhold Hall
The University of Georgia

- Learn about the Red Clay Writing Project's 7th annual Summer Institute, June 8- July 1, 2009.
- Find out how to apply for a fellowship that pays your tuition for 3-6 graduate credits.
- Hear RCWP Teacher Consultants tell how they explored critical literacy issues such as cultural and linguistic diversity, connecting home and school literacies, and learning from student work.
- See examples of how your colleagues in areas K-12 classrooms have expanded how they teach and how their students learn.
- Discover how you can be part of a dynamic learning community of teachers from all content areas including special education, art, and ESL or ESOL.
- Hear about the excitement of discovering yourself as a writer.

Institute Co-directors

Lois Alexander

Clarke County School District

JoBeth Allen

University of Georgia

Bob Fecho

University of Georgia

The Red Clay Writing Project is a site of the National Writing Project. For more information and an application, contact Emily Pendergrass, rcwp@uga.edu, 706-542-4619. Visit our website: www.coe.uga.edu/rcwp

Good Things Grow in Red Clay!